My childhood was full of fond memories of my Uncle Jimmy. It always seemed strange to Mike, Doug and me that we had an uncle very close to our own age. He was the first person I ever saw who ate the entire apple, core and all; squirted us with cow milk straight from the source; showed us how to ride a cow, and eat watermelons straight from the patch. Our days at the farm with the family were always an adventure to us city boys, thanks to Jimmy. In later life we slipped apart, but my memories of Jimmy were some of the dearest I have. He was a quiet, gentle, man. I always enjoyed seeing him at Christmas and catching up with my very special UNCLE JIMMY.

I am very sorry to hear the news about Jimmy. He worked with my husband at the prison. He was always kind to me, and sometimes when I packed Paul's lunch I would pack one for "Little Jimmy".
