Dad and I had a rocky past, but we seemed to work things out. Unfortunately, 3 years ago, dad and I had a fall out that we never cleared. Time got the better of us both. Living within 5 miles of my dad, my inherited stubbornness and hardheaded thinking kept me from returning to make amends to the issues between us. We will never be able to fix what was broken. I didn't agree with him most of the time and at times I didn't like who or what he was, but he was my dad and I loved him. In reality, we were so much alike yet complete opposites. It hurts more than I ever imagined it would. So many "what ifs". I love you dad. I regret our distance over the past 3 years. I pray you can forgive me for not trying to mend our relationship. I'm sorry. Your daughter, Melissa Dawn McCabe
