Mr. And Mrs. Rhodes:Our thoughts and prayers go out to you and the entire family during this most difficult time. When I heard the news, I immediately reflected on how blessed I was to have Eric a part of my life and team. He took great pride with attention to detail In videoing our games. He set the standard for the rest of my coaching career. Being a young coach and educator, he bought In immediately and the conversations we had about how he could expand his role to maximize his abilities were amazing. He took great pride in dressing up on game days and placing on the team vest!Please let me know if I can help in any way.Leo Brunelli and familyHead Basketball Coach North Stanly Comets 2000-06

Terry & Cindy, I am so sorry to hear about Eric. I remember the two of you working side by side in Mosaic. He was always willing to help and was not afraid of hard work. I hope you can find peace and comfort in the days ahead.

Terry, I'm heart broken and sorry for your loss. When I first started working for Mosaic as a student Eric was one of the "cool" senior student workers. I always enjoyed when he and you would stop by the computer help desk to talk shop...or complain :) Later on after Eric graduated and I began working for you - It was easy to see how proud you were of him as you'd share Eric's adventures traveling with server equipment in his carry-on through airports, showing off his new Dodge Challenger, how eagerly you would track his flights and the relief on your face when you'd get phone calls from him letting you know he'd safely landed. I'm praying for comfort and peace for you and your wife as you walk this difficult time.- Kyle Walters

Dear Terry, I am so sorry about this unbearable loss of your wonderful son Eric. I remember when Eric came to work with you when he was a teenager. It was so sweet of him trying to learn your job at UNCC. The obvious love and bond between the two of you is the envy of all fathers. I got to know Eric later after your retirement, he turned out to be the gentleman I always expected. I will miss my occasional chats with him in the elevator. I hope the passing of time will be kind to you and family in easing your pain and sorrow. Take care of yourself my friend. Sincerely, Farid Tranjan,

As a direct co-worker, and team member, Eric will be sorely missed. We all have only good to say about Eric. He was such a valuable asset to the UNC Charlotte College of Engineering. He was a friend that I could have conversations with about all things tech. You never know how someone that you simply interact with on a daily basis can end up occupying such a large space in your heart. My thoughts are now with the family. Let you find peace and loving memories.

Terry, I am absolutely devastated by your profound loss. My heart is heavy, and I struggle to find the right words to express the depth of my personal sorrows. The news of Eric's passing has left me utterly stunned and in disbelief. Following your retirement, Eric became an integral part of my work at UNC Charlotte, and he was undoubtedly one of the top five individuals at UNC Charlotte who helped establish and grow our motorsports research. He is one of the behind-the-scenes key players to be credited for the current reputation (and growth) of Charlotte's computational motorsports engineering program. Eric's impact on me and my students was immeasurable. He touched us in countless ways: with his knowledge, unwavering eagerness to help, and unyielding support for our students' needs. His dedication and hard work were exemplary. Beyond that, his warm and friendly demeanor made every interaction a joy. At least for my research group, and for me personally, the void left by Eric's absence will be difficult to fill. Eric's legacy will live on through the countless lives he has touched, and he will be missed by me, my students. Mesbah Uddin
